

The Homeschool Awakening

Whether you are looking into homeschool as an option for your children, or are a veteran homeschooler, this movie will stimulate discussion concerning family and cultural values and provoke deep contemplation about our goals and principles as parents. Following are important questions for families to discuss.

1. Are our children receiving the academic instruction they deserve through their present school setting? (Basic academic foundation, given individual attention, provided assistance when needed).
2. Are they developing the study skills they need for life? (Learning to focus and work things through).
3. What values and principles are they being exposed to and are learning by the examples around them each day? (dysfunctional socialization)
4. What agenda is behind the instruction they receive? (Political agendas, sexual identity, racial discrimination, etc.).
5. Does the school teach religious values of faith and help them with their relationship with God?
6. How much choice do I have as a parent over my children's education?
7. Are they being taught family values, kindness, politeness, consideration of others, honesty, faithfulness, etc? Do my children have time to be children and does our family have time together?
